POST COUNCIL VOTE STATEMENT ON STORM WATER FUND MISALLOCATION FROM CITY CONTROLLER CHRIS HOLLINS

"Today's vote to misappropriate $30 million from Houston's Storm Water Fund was deeply disappointing. But let me be clear: seven Council Members chose public trust over political convenience, and that matters.

Flooding is not a theoretical problem in Houston. It's a lived reality. Every dollar in the Storm Water Fund was promised to one purpose: keeping our streets from turning into rivers when it rains. Diverting those funds breaks that promise.

As the watchdog for Houston taxpayers' hard-earned money, I won't stop calling this out. Accountability doesn't end with a vote, and neither does my responsibility. I will continue fighting to protect this fund, protect Houstonians, and protect the future of our city—even when it's uncomfortable.

The only way to solve our very serious financial challenges is through principled leadership, transparency, and, as we discussed during the Council Meeting, teamwork. We clearly have a long way to go. But these are fights worth having."
